

Re: Martin Hoyle - Business Coach - Professional Coaching Services

I have worked with Martin for almost a year and have found our coaching relationship to be extremely productive. My goal in working with a coach was to get clarity on my personal value proposition and having identified what it was to define a development plan that would help me achieve my career goals both now and in the future. The work we have done together has enabled me to add significant value to my current role and in particular helped me to define my leadership style.

During our year of working together Martin has not only helped me to achieve the above but he has been a fantastic sounding board and advisor for challenges that have arisen in the course of business.

Yours sincerely
